King & Ballow's "2009 Breakfast Briefing Series"

King & Ballow announces the "2009 Breakfast Briefing Series." Over the course of the year, we will present monthly programs on topics of current legal interest and of longstanding concern to business people.

The legal and regulatory climates are expected to vastly change over the next years. It is important that everyone be aware, not only of changes as they occur, but of possible changes before they occur.

In 2008, the Americans with Disabilities Act was amended, and substantial revisions were made to the regulations interpreting the Family & Medical Leave Act and the Immigration Reform & Control Act. In 2009, Congress will be looking at legislation changing the rules for union organizing and bargaining, amending civil rights statutes to make it easier to sue employers for pay discrimination, requiring employers to provide paid sick leave, and prohibiting employment discrimination based on sexual orientation. The Breakfast Briefings will address these issues as well as other issues of legal importance.

King & Ballow attorneys have years of experience in labor and employment law, tax and benefit law, antitrust law, media practice, and intellectual property, among many other fields. These attorneys will offer updates and cutting-edge insights into many legal issues affecting the business community.
